Behind all motivation is a great story.

Easter morning marks the anniversary of a tragedy in Joe Mattew's life. He woke up in the early hours to the smell of smoke in his Fairfield County, CT home. Thankfully the family ( 2 little girls and his wife) survived but unfortunately the entire house burned down. They lost every single material thing.

Unforeseen events happen and we feel like we've lost something. We may feel helpless or bewildered. Yet, how we deal with these types of events shapes our future existence. Where we choose to put our attention and deliberately steer our actions is one way to succeed. The benefits of being prepared, self-sufficient and taking action is empowering.

Joe battled back and will share great advice how to prepare for the unexpected and live a life with purpose, dignity and be a better role model for those whose lives you touch.

Joseph J. Matthews CFA, CFP Morgan Stanley, First Vice President, U.S. Government Entity Specialist, Adjunct Professor at New York University, Fairfield University. Son of a NYC Fire Fighter and devoted family man, motivated by helping others truly succeed in meeting their goals.

There do you see your motivation, your Drive come alive in this story? Let me know! (and maybe you'll be on the show...)

There's always something good on The Drive. It's how you fuel your life that creates the ultimate ride. Thanks for tuning in and sharing the motivation for your drive.
