Chaffin Luhana LLP Furthers Growth with Expansion to Connecticut, Upholding Their Mission of ‘Doing Good by Doing Right™’

Lawyers focused on Doing Good by Doing Right™ for the injured

STAMFORD, CT., March 26, 2024 – Chaffin Luhana LLP, a plaintiffs-only personal injury and mass tort law firm with a national trial practice, has opened offices in Connecticut including in Stamford, Bridgeport, Hartford, and New Haven. The firm’s expansion into Connecticut marks a significant step forward in the firm’s mission of Doing Good by Doing Right™. The firm focuses on personal injury and mass tort cases for those injured or killed by the wrongful acts of others.

“We are motivated by compassion for our clients and a strong sense of justice. We litigate and try personal injury cases of all sizes - simple car crashes to complex product liability cases,” said Managing and Co-Founding Partner, Eric Chaffin. “I am a first-generation lawyer and call Connecticut home after being raised in the greater-Pittsburgh area and becoming a federal prosecutor in New York. We are excited to bring to Connecticut the same high level of client service that we have provided nationwide for over 14 years.”

“My family instilled a strong sense of compassion, work ethic, and drive from an early age, values that shape my practice of law every day,” said Co-Founding Partner, Roopal Luhana. “We serve those injured in auto and truck crashes and on dangerous premises. We also handle more complex mass tort cases. Projects we currently lead nationally include the fight against Uber for sexual assaults against women in their cars and against the government on behalf of Marines and their families who were poisoned at Camp Lejeune. We have a long and successful history of helping people who have been injured in accidents of all types and are excited to be serving the people of Connecticut.”

“Our central focus is helping the everyday person who is injured,” Chaffin added. “The little guy like my dad who was a steelworker and my law partner Roopal’s parents who are immigrants. We do not represent corporations or institutions. We want to help the little guy get justice,” said Chaffin.

“Despite our success inside and outside the courtroom, we are guided by our ethos of Doing Good by Doing Right[™]. Our attorneys and staff remain grounded and true to our humble roots,” said Luhana. “We pride ourselves in being compassionate and empathetic toward our clients and communities, treating them like family.”

The firm started in New York City in 2010 and expanded into Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and West Virginia in 2013. The firm’s new office in Stamford, Connecticut is in Landmark Square, near Managing Partner Eric Chaffin’s home. The firm has a team of more than 70 lawyers and staff firmwide and will grow to over 100 team members by year-end. The current team includes former federal and state prosecutors, former judicial law clerks, former large defense firm attorneys, nurse paralegals, a social worker, and technology staff who help implement some of the most innovative client services available in the legal industry.

“We are high-growth mindset litigators and trial lawyers who are always up for a challenge, particularly where we can seek justice for our clients and live up to our ethos of Doing Good by Doing Right[™],” said Chaffin.

“When clients come to us, we want to make things as easy as possible during their case journey and make our team more efficient using AI and other technology. By leveraging technology, our team has more time to spend with the clients and on the substance of cases, which helps set us apart from a cluttered personal injury market,” said Chaffin. “Our commitment to providing compassionate, client-focused representation remains our top priority, and we’re excited to extend this commitment to those injured in Connecticut.”
